2024 湖北专升本统考英语小蓝书预测卷十二

试卷获取方式

Part I Vocabulary & Structure

1．I saw an ancient building_____ dates back thousands of years.

2．For _____ (convenient) it is divided roughly into three zones.

3．In total, 45 per cent of adults in Britain are _____(expose) to tobacco smoke at home.

4．_____ (absorb) in his book, he forgot to have lunch.

5．People in those days had very few_____ （amuse) to choose from. There was no radio or television.

6．_____(prevent) this from happening again, John Snow suggested that the sources of all the water supplies be examined.

7．To protect my computer from _____(attack) by hackers, I equipped it with anti-virus software.

8．_____ interested her most was the longitude line.

9．There _____ a professor from Japan and two experts from America.

10．Blue man put forward a few means which _____ (try) recently.

11．If you want to apply for a scholarship, you have to fill out the _____ (apply) form first. 12．A lot of new machines have been applied in the factory, resulting_____ a production increase.

13．This appointment was an attempt to _____ (strength) her hand in policy discussions.

14．Lauren Bath will post the pictures taken by her online, and make a comment _____ how bad it is to feed wild animals.

15．We _____ (study) for our exams when the fire alarm went off.

Part II Reading Comprehension

Passage One

I've always been creative since I was a little girl. My childhood was filled with arts, crafts (手工) and music, and every day was an exciting adventure of creation.

Somewhere along the way, however, I lost touch with my creative self. At 21, I landed a job at a big insurance company out of my business degree. I would go to the office, sit at my desk and repeat the same work five days a week 9 to 5. The days were long and tedious. Working this way for one year was painful enough, let alone a lifetime. Before long I decided to make a change.

One thing I had developed an interest in was sewing, so I took a sewing course at a community college. It was only a five-week course but it awakened my interest and got my confidence up.

As I dream bigger, I began looking into college courses for Fashion Design and three months later I signed up for a part-time design course. I attended classes two nights a week. Although exhausting, it gave me energy, enthusiasm and happiness.

As it became clearer that fashion was what I wanted to do full time, the reality of my day-to-day work at the insurance company became harder. I felt bored. No energy, no motivation and zero fulfillment (满足感).

I knew I needed to make a bigger change. After struggling for quite a while, I made a difficult decision—leaving my job and studying my design course full time. Two years later I got my diploma.

The last few years have been exciting because I've been following my heart to do what I love. Today I am living a creative life as the designer of my own fashion brand.

Sometimes it's hard to make a change, but I'm so glad I set the wheels of change in motion with that very small first step because it has led me to where I am today.

16. What was the author interested in when she was a little girl?

_____

17. What does the underlined word in Paragraph 2 mean?

_____

18. How did the author feel when she was taking the part-time design course?

_____

19. What did the author do to get back to her creative life? Give two of the facts.

_____

20. Do you consider the author as your role model? Please explain.

Passage Two

For many teenagers, a job is a way to earn a little extra money. For me, it is more than that.

At the age of 16, I was offered my very first job as a shopgirl in a clothing store. On the first day, my manager was training me how to fold and organize platform after platform of clothes. The work seemed overwhelming, and everything had to be done in an accurate way. I got so impatient because I couldn't get it right the first couple of times. After about ten tries, I had the clothes folded perfectly. Then it took me thirty minutes to get them all looking uniform. Now, I fold and organize clothes every day, and I'm able to do them well. Through this experience, I've learned to be patient.

Helping customers and establishing connections with them is one of the things I love most about my job. About two months ago, I helped a woman who was looking for a dress. She told me exactly what she was picturing—a blue dress with long sleeves and a lace neck. We didn't have any such dress, and when I explained that to her, she wasn't very happy. Instead of getting annoyed, I tried getting to know her a bit better and asked what the dress was for, so I could find other items in her size that could work. We shared our love of the Netflix fashion show, and she ended up buying $200 worth of new clothes, having found other items she liked. This experience has taught me to be more open with strangers.

Every job has its share of frustrations and challenges; to do well you must learn to deal with them. I've learned this from my own experience, and it has helped me in other aspects of my life as well.

21. What was the author's first job?

_____

22. What is the meaning of the underlined word in Para. 2?

_____

23. How did the author manage to meet the customer's needs in Para. 3?

_____

24. How has the author's work experience changed her in personality?

_____

25. What job would you like to do? How can you help people in your work?

_____

Passage Three

After being evacuated (疏散) from her Florida home following Hurricane Michael. Amber Gee was attempting to get an idea of the destruction left behind when she discovered a sign of trouble. As reported by ABC News, Gee was using NOAA's interactive aerial map (交互式航拍地图) to check the damage done to her and her family's homes when she spotted the word "H-E-L-P" spelled out in the yard.

The NOAA website allows those impacted in the hurricane look at the aerial photos of the affected area. According to ABC News, Gee was looking at one of these photos when she noticed a cry for help spelled out in wood in the front yard of her grandmother's Bay County home.

Though her grandmother had evacuated, several other family members, including Gee's uncle, John, had stayed behind. After spotting the message, Gee alerted (向……报警) Bay County Emergency Services.

After the rescue, Bay County Emergency Services posted the incident on their Facebook page, writing, "This is an incredible story of how people are working together in this situation. Someone from another county was using the mapping app to check property in rural Bay County and noticed the word 'help' spelled out in the grass in wood. That person immediately contacted us and sent the picture and we dispatched emergency workers."

Meanwhile, Gee says she is thankful that she was able to use the mapping tool to get her family to safety. "The hurricane has turned everything upside down everywhere. Some were more fortunate than others. I'm just happy that everybody is safe and sound and, hopefully, soon we will all get through this together and recover from this storm," she said.

26. What did Gee use the mapping app to do?

_____

27. Who can look at the NOAA website's aerial photos of the affected area?

_____

28. Who spelled out "Help" to cry for help?

_____

29. What does the underlined word "dispatched" in Para. 5 probably mean?

_____

30. What lesson can you learn from this story? Please explain.

_____

Passage Four

Having established himself as one of the greatest magicians over the last three decades, David Copperfield remains hailed by audiences and critics because his magic still leaves most puzzles unsolved — not only for ordinary people but counterparts in the field of illusion (错觉). He believes he's remained at the top because of an undiminished passion for magic. "I'm among the few who are lucky enough to know what they want to do at early age," he said.

Copperfield discovered an interest in magic at the age of 8 when he learned some simple tricks from his parents who were both magicians. "When I showed those tricks to other kids, I found they all liked them very much, and they thought I was great. This made me very willing to learn new magic," he recalled. "Such a feeling still supports me now. I like to see the audiences become amazed and go crazy for my performance."

He began performing professionally at the age of 12 and became the youngest person to be admitted to the Society of American Magicians. By 16, he was teaching a course in magic at New York University. He was among the first magicians to pioneer the TV spectacular, helping boost the appeal for the craft (职业) worldwide.

His love for magic also turned him from a shy, timid boy to a risk-taker prepared to challenge limits. "Magic provides me a channel to express myself, just like singers through their songs and poets through poems," he said, "And I think everyone needs to dream. Magic offers me the chance to make true my dreams and those of other people."

Now 68, Copperfield has no thought of retiring from his beloved career. "I really enjoy what I'm doing. I enjoy the process of creating and sharing my creation with others. I dream that my career will last forever. Dreams aren't a matter of chance, but a matter of choice."

31．What makes David Copperfield one of the greatest magicians for decades?

_____

32．How did David Copperfield discover an interest in magic at an early age?

_____

33．What is mainly talked about in the third paragraph?

_____

34．What does the underlined word "hailed" mean in paragraph 1?

_____

35．How does Copperfield's story inspire you?

_____

Passage Five

Jenny was the only child in her home. She had a quarrel with her mother that afternoon and she ran out of the house with anger. She was sorrowful when she thought of the scolding from her mother. Wandering aimlessly in the street for hours, she felt a little hungry and wished for something to eat, but it was not possible for her, since she had nothing with her. She stood beside a stand for a while, watching the middle-aged seller busy doing his business. However, with no money in hand, she sighed and had to leave.

The seller behind the stand noticed the young girl and asked, "Hey, girl, you want to have the noodles?"

"Oh, yes. . . but I don't have money on me…" she replied.

"That's nothing. I'll treat you today," said the man. "Come in."

The seller brought her a bowl of noodles, whose smell was so attractive. As she was eating, Jenny cried silently.

"What is it?" asked the man kindly.

"Nothing, actually I was just touched by your kindness!" said Jenny as she wiped her tears. "Even a stranger on the street will give me a bowl of noodles, while my mother drove me out of the house. She showed no care for me. She is so merciless compared to a stranger!"

kind treat mercy hunger expect move anger wander strict complain sorrowful possible
One afternoon Jenny quarreled with her mother and left home with __36__.	⟹	She felt __37__ .
⇩		⇩
__38__ in the street for hours， Jenny felt hungry.	⟹	Jenny expected something to eat， but it was impossible for her.
⇩		⇩
A seller had a small talk with Jenny and treated her to a bowl of noodles.	⟹	She was moved and cried silently because of the seller's __39__.

⇩		⇩
Jenny thanked the seller and complained that her mother showed no care for her.	⇨	She thought her mother was so __40__ compared to a stranger.

Part III Error Correction

41. He is now in his thirties and has been teaching in almost ten years.(　　)_____

A　　B　　C　　D

42. Li Yuan did very well in her job. And then she runs a restaurant of her own.

A　　B　　C　　D

(　　)_____

43. When we arrived, we were warmly welcome by them.(　　)_____

A　　B　　C　　D

44. Since last winter, the smog has been occurred a lot of times.(　　)_____

A　　B　C　　D

45. If our staffs determined that your clothes are not appropriate, you will be forbidden to enter the school.(　　)_____

A　　B　　C

D

Part IV Translation

46. 因缺少资金，公众直到最近才得以进入这个商业中心。(accessible to)

_____

47. 为了安全起见，我们去公共场所时要佩戴好口罩。（sake）

_____

48. 尽管感到精疲力竭，但这位足球运动员没有半途而废。(halfway)

_____

49. 你昨天错过的会议非常重要。（important）

_____

50. 据说，黄梅戏源于湖北省黄梅县。(Huangmei Opera)

_____

51. Recycling is an important practice that benefits the environment. It involves collecting and processing used materials so that they can be turned into new products. One of the main advantages of recycling is the conservation of natural resources. This helps in preserving our forests, reducing the reliance on fossil fuels, and minimizing damage to ecosystems. Another benefit is energy conservation. The process of recycling often requires less energy compared to producing new products. By making recycling a habit and raising awareness about its importance, we can create a better future.

Part V Writing

52. 你的英国朋友 Jim 打算暑假来你的家乡旅行，请你写一封电子邮件给他做一个旅行计划。内容主要包括：

1.陈述这封邮件的目的；

2.简要介绍你的家乡(如美食、美景、文化等)；

3.对客人的到来表示欢迎。

注意：

1.词数 80 左右；

2.适当发挥，不要简单翻译。

Dear Jim,

Yours,

Li Hua