Taking public transit means that you will be sharing your ride with other people. Being considerate while on the system makes everyone's trip more enjoyable.

Courtesy seating(爱心专座)

Seats closest to the doors are for persons with disabilities(残障) and/or seniors. People appreciate you offering these seats to them.

Food & drink

If you are going to eat or drink while riding the system, remember to keep it clean and don't litter. Take your garbage with you.

Make room for others

Our system can get very busy during rush hour and we do not want to leave people behind. When boarding a bus, move towards the back to allow space for others.

Keep doorways clear

In order for people to get on the CTrain, people first need to be allowed to get off. Before you board, please stand back and allow passengers to exit. When on the bus, please stand clear of the exit door and allow people to exit easily.

Luggage

Please remove your backpack(背包) and put it on the floor. If seating space is limited, ensure that your personal items are not taking away seats from other passengers.

Passage 2

Directions: Read the following passage. After reading it, you should give brief answers to the 5 questions (No.16 to No.20) that follow. The answers (in no more than 3 words) should be written after the corresponding numbers on the Answer Sheet.

In 2012, we started a "Sales-as-a-Service" business called ElasticSales. Our vision was to build the sales infrastructure(基础设施) necessary to enable companies to scale their sales efforts. We opened an office, hired top sales talent, and signed up clients within the first few weeks.

Next, we searched the market for the best technologies available. Unfortunately, we came back disappointed. Existing solutions seemed to be focused on turning sales professionals into data entry specialists. None of them showed any understanding of the needs of a sales person when it came to their job and daily workflow(工作流程).

We decided to fix the problem instead of complaining about it.

We started developing our own internal sales application. During that time our sales people generated millions of dollars in sales for hundreds of venture backed Silicon Valley startups using our secret sales sauce: Close.

We knew we were sitting on something special when we got more and more demand from other people who wanted to use our internal software, so in January 2013 we released Close to the world.

Today, we're 40 + team members from around the world—supporting and coaching thousands of customers to grow every single day.

16. What was the vision of the business?

Building the sales infrastructure necessary to enable companies to scale _____.

17. Why did they come disappointed after they searched the market for the best technologies available?

Because existing solutions showed no understanding of the needs of _____.

18. What did they do to fix the problem?

They began developing their own internal _____ _____.

19. What did ElasticSales release to the world in 2013?

An application called _____.

20. How many team members are there in ElasticSales?

More than _____.

Valmont Industries, Inc. is a leading producer and distributor of products and services for the infrastructure(基础设施) and agricultural markets.

Valmont began in 1946 when the founder, Robert B. Daugherty, combined his $5,000 savings with a whole-hearted belief that business could and should be done better. From those modest beginnings, the company grew into a global leader of engineered products and services for infrastructure, and water-conserving irrigation(灌溉) equipment and solutions for agriculture.

Four primary business sections comprise Valmont: Engineered Support Structures, Coatings, Irrigation and Utility Support Structures. We manufacture products in over 80 different facilities spread across 6 continents and do business in over 23 different countries.

We have great confidence in our products. We pride ourselves on being people of integrity who are excellent at delivering results. We pursue opportunities for growth by taking products and processes to new markets, developing new products for existing markets, and continually improving across the company to ensure that Valmont solutions are always the global industry leader.
