questions (No.11 to No.15) that follow. The answers (in no more than 3 words) should be written after the corresponding numbers on the Answer Sheet.

This country, as Lincoln said, belongs to the people. So do the natural resources which make it rich. They supply the basis of our prosperity now and hereafter. In preserving them, which is a national duty, we must not forget that monopoly (垄断) is based on the control of natural resources and natural advantages, and that it will help the people little to conserve our natural wealth unless the benefits which it can yield are given back to the people. Let us remember, also, that conservation does not stop with the natural resources. The principle of making the best use of all we have requires that we stop the waste of human life in industry and prevent the waste of human welfare which flows from the unfair use of concentrated power and wealth in the hands of men whose eagerness for profit blinds them to the cost of what they do. We have no higher duty than to promote the efficiency of the individual. There is no surer road to the efficiency of the nation.

11. What makes a nation prosperous?

_____.

12. Who should benefit from natural resources?

_____.

13. What should be prevented?

_____.

14. What is the most important in a nation?

_____.

15. On what does the efficiency of a nation depend?

_____.

Passage 2

Directions: Read the following passage. After reading it, you should give brief answers to the 5 questions (No.16 to No.20) that follow. The answers (in no more than 3 words) should be written after the corresponding numbers on the Answer Sheet.

Imagine we build a robot to explore the planet Mars and provide it with detectors to be away from danger. It is powered by the sun. Should we program the robot to be equally active at all times? The answer is NO. The robot would be using up energy when it was not receiving any. So we would probably program it to stop its activity at night and to wake up the next morning.

Human beings have a pattern of sleeping and waking, as sleep provides some important fresh energy. It is believed that man has been programmed to perform functions at a time when activity would be inefficient. However, sleep does not protect us from trouble that comes looking for us. So we sleep well when we are in a safe place, but we sleep lightly when we fear that bears will nose into the tent.

Sleep among creatures is different. Why do cats, for example, sleep so much, while horses sleep so little? Cats can afford to have long periods of inactivity because they spend little time eating and are unlikely to be attacked when in sleep. Horses must spend almost all their waking hours eating, because what they eat is low in energy value. Moreover, they cannot afford to sleep too long or too deeply, because their survival depends on their ability to run away from attackers.

16. Why does the author use the example of the robot?

To tell us the reason why a regular pattern of _____ is needed to provide new energy.

17. Why has man been programmed to sleep at night?

To avoid inefficient _____.

18. When can we sleep well?

We can sleep well in _____.

19. What differences are there between cats and horses?

Cats sleep _____ than horses.

20. Without long and deep sleep, why can horses survive?

Because they are _____ their ability to run away from attackers.
