Passage 1

The development of telephones, televisions, radios, and the Internet has greatly facilitated global communication. Unlike in the past when it would take weeks or even months for news to travel between continents, these devices allow information to be transmitted across the globe within seconds or hours.

This increased speed of communication has had a profound impact on the world. Two hundred years ago, the long time required for communication between continents influenced people's actions and decisions. For example, during the War of 1812 between England and the United States, several battles could have been avoided if the news of a peace agreement had reached America in time. However, due to the six-week time difference, the Battle of New Orleans occurred after the peace treaty (条约) had already been signed, resulting in unnecessary loss of life.

In the past, the world seemed much larger. News and information were primarily transmitted through slow methods such as ships, which needed weeks or months to travel. With the advent of modern technology, the speed of communication has dramatically improved, allowing ideas, news, and assistance to be shared rapidly across borders. This has brought people closer together and made the world feel more interconnected. The ease and speed with which information now travels has transformed various aspects of society, enabling prompt collaborations, sharing of knowledge, and faster responses to emergencies or disasters occurring in remote locations.

Marketing furniture to the public can be challenging for a small business owner. Consumers buy furniture pieces only occasionally. However, there are several furniture promotion ideas that can be used to help you reach your target market.

One thing you can do is to talk with real estate (房地产) agents to allow you to display your furniture in a new home or open house setting. This is a good way to reach a key target market — new home buyers — who may need new furniture for their future homes. Increasing foot traffic (顾客流量) is also important for a furniture store. To get more people to the store, you can advertise a raffle event (抽奖活动). This event can be promoted in your local media and through direct mail campaigns or front door advertisements to generate more interest.

In tough economic times, small business owners often suffer most as a result of slow consumer spending. To fight back against this, you have to make it easier for your customers to buy furniture. If you can, offer in-store financing, or drop the interest rate on your company's credit terms. Consider lowering your prices and holding two-for-one events to arouse more consumers' interest.

21. Why is it a challenge for small businesses to sell furniture to the public?

22. According to the writer, what does "new home buyers" mean?

_____.

23. To get more customers to your store, you are advised to _____.

24. The purpose of holding two-for-one events is to _____.

25. The passage is mainly about _____.

Passage 3

The key to any successful garage sale (家庭旧物出售) is to get the word out. The best means of advertising your sale is to place an ad in the local newspaper. If you have a city paper, make sure you advertise in it. The ad should be large enough that it stands out. It should also include information on where the sale is located with directions, the "hot" items you're selling and the time the sale will start and end. An ad should be placed at least two days before the sale and run until the day of your event. That way people can plan their route (路线) to the sale in advance.

Signs are another great way to inform your community. Post them in places where people gather, such as stores and community centers. Some businesses have a central bulletin board (布告栏), which is the best place to advertise. Other places to post are at the local college or university campus. This is especially helpful if your sale is happening in August or early September when students have returned to school and are looking for cheap finds.

Post signs around your neighborhood. You should also place both ads and direction signs, especially if you're located on a side street without a major presence. Signs will attract and direct people. Just make sure you print in bold letters and use large direction signs so people can read the information from the front seat of their car.

26. The best way of getting out the news of your garage sale is to _____.
